Message from Mohammad Yasin Malik

Chairman Jammu Kashmir Liberation Front

A constitution is a fundamental document for any organisation. It keeps the organisation's members bound within order and discipline. The existence of a constitution serves as a beacon for the organisation's members; as long as they remain attached to it, their ranks remain protected against every kind of disorder and disintegration. Revolutionary individuals who are bound by discipline join the ranks, and their struggle to achieve the organisation's objectives advances rapidly. For a revolutionary and progressive organisation, a constitution is also important because it guides the organisation in adapting its practical strategy to the requirements of prevailing circumstances. A revolutionary constitution and a correct practical strategy guarantee the success of the national struggle. The absence of a constitution produces a lack of order and discipline, and incorrect practical strategies lead organisations astray. Consequently, failures, aimlessness and setbacks become their fate.

Following the reunification of the Jammu Kashmir Liberation Front, preparing a new constitution was undoubtedly a difficult but most important task. It has been completed successfully through the efforts of the Front's constitutional committee, central committee and senior members, and under the patronage of the leader of the movement, Amanullah Khan. I congratulate all the organisation's members on this achievement.

In this struggle between truth and falsehood, I have aligned myself only with consciousness and conscience. Offering one's life is no great matter. Passion for the beloved freedom is as essential as breath is for preserving life.

Preface

A constitution performs an extremely important function for an organisation. It serves as a beacon for its members: in its light they advance in the right direction towards the organisation's ultimate objective, whereas without that beacon they wander in different directions. A constitution's second function is to bind the organisation's members within discipline concerning the organisation, movement and ideology; without it, unity and practical cohesion cannot be created among them. In view of this importance, every member of an organisation is duty-bound to observe its constitution.

Friday, 12 August 2011, is a blessed and important day in the history of the Jammu Kashmir Liberation Front, which has been engaged in the struggle for Kashmir's freedom for several decades. On that day the leaders of the divided Liberation Front, myself and Mohammad Yasin Malik, decided in principle to reunify the organisation. Subsequently, the ordinary members of both organisations and, particularly, their central executive committees, with a few exceptions, showed exceptional generosity, patriotism and foresight and endorsed this decision in principle, voting to intensify the struggle for the state's sovereignty. To carry forward the process of reunification and settle other details, a reunification committee comprising senior Front leaders from both sides was formed: Advocate Bashir Ahmad Bhat, Hafiz Anwar Samavi, Advocate Mohammad Sabir Ansari, Khawaja Parvez Iqbal, Mohammad Rafiq Dar, Master Mohammad Afzal, Abdul Hameed Bhat and Manzoor Ahmad Khan. With exceptional dedication and resolve, this committee succeeded in establishing a provisional central committee of 19 members under the leadership of the lifelong Supreme Head, myself, and Chairman Mohammad Yasin Malik.

By consensus, this reunification committee also decided to establish a four-member constitutional committee under Advocate Mohammad Sabir Ansari to prepare the constitution. On 15 October 2011, at simultaneous press conferences at the Islamabad Press Club and Maqbool Manzil in Srinagar, the decision to reunify the Liberation Front under my and Mohammad Yasin Malik's leadership was announced, together with the other decisions approved by the reunification committee.

Preparing and securing approval of a new constitution was a particularly difficult, sensitive and important task. The newly formed constitutional committee fulfilled its duties with dedication, prepared initial drafts and submitted them to the central committee. At the Central Information Office in Rawalpindi, in a meeting chaired by me and attended by Chairman Mohammad Yasin Malik, the central committee members from the Azad Kashmir and Gilgit-Baltistan zone examined these drafts. In light of the recommendations received from the central committee members of the other zones, the organisation's final constitution was approved on 21 April 2012.

There were undoubtedly many difficulties and problems in preparing the new constitution and obtaining its approval, but I am completely confident that, after its approval, Liberation Front members will face no difficulty in working for the organisation and promoting the movement and ideology.

Following reunification and the establishment of the new constitution, the Jammu Kashmir Liberation Front has become the only organisation of Kashmiris working under one constitution and leadership at every level in all three parts of the state and in the diaspora. This is the torch-bearer of the state's integrity, its unity and solidarity, and the creation of a shared society among its different peoples.

The Liberation Front's reunification can become the beginning of a new chapter in the freedom movement, provided its members show discipline and sacrifice with renewed passion for national freedom and national self-respect, and step forward.

Finally, I thank the constitutional committee members who gave this constitution its final form through their suggestions and recommendations. I also wish to thank central committee member Karim Malik and brothers Mohammad Rafiq Dar and Dr Ghulam Qadir Gilani, whose tireless efforts made its compilation and publication possible.

(d) Wherever "state subject" is used in this constitution, it shall mean a person, male or female, who is himself or herself, or whose parents are, hereditary state subjects or state subjects under the state's law, irrespective of that person's or the parents' place of birth, residence or present citizenship.

(g) Wherever "Centre" is used in this constitution, it shall mean the organisation's central leadership and its highest central institution, the Supreme Council.

Article 3 Scope

(a) The Front's scope, within and outside the state, shall extend to all state subjects of the State of Jammu Kashmir: Indian-occupied Kashmir (the provinces of the Kashmir Valley, Jammu and Ladakh); state subjects residing in India; the Kashmir territories under Pakistan's control (Azad Kashmir and Gilgit-Baltistan); state subjects of Kashmir in Pakistan; and state subjects residing in Britain, Europe, the Middle East, America and all other countries.

(b) The Centre's scope shall extend to the organisation's institutions and branches at every level in all the zones specified in clause (a).

(c) All zones shall, to a certain extent, be autonomous and shall establish their organisational structures in accordance with their own needs.

(d) Each zone shall be accountable to the organisation and its central committee through its members. All zones shall be bound to assist the Centre in every way in advancing the programme.

Article 4 Ideology

The Front's views concerning the Kashmir issue, the state's present constitutional status, the manner of obtaining Kashmir's freedom, and the state's constitutional, political, economic and social future, as well as the rights and duties of state subjects, shall be as follows.

1. The Kashmir issue is not a territorial dispute concerning the ownership of a particular territory between India and Pakistan. It is the issue of national freedom and reunification of the forcibly divided State of Jammu Kashmir.

2. The State of Jammu Kashmir, or any part of it, is not constitutionally or legally part of another country.

3. No individual, group, political party or government, under any constitution or law, has the right to decide the state's or any of its parts' political future or permanent constitutional status. If such a decision has been made, or is made in the future, by any individual, group, party, constitutional body or government, it shall have no legal or constitutional standing.

4. The State of Jammu Kashmir, including all territories that formed part of the state on 14 August 1947, is an indivisible political entity. State subjects neither recognise nor consider themselves bound by any international agreement whose objective is to maintain the state's present forcible division or to divide it permanently by any other means.

5. The right to determine the future constitution, and its political, social and economic system, and the nature of its relations with other countries, belongs solely and exclusively to the people of Kashmir. No arrangement imposed on the whole or any part of Kashmir against the collective wishes of its state subjects shall have any constitutional standing.

6. The best solution of the Kashmir issue is to reunite the entire State of Jammu Kashmir and make it an independent and sovereign country.

7. The Jammu Kashmir Liberation Front's ultimate objective is freedom, and our view of ultimate freedom is that, after the whole State of Jammu Kashmir has become an independent and sovereign country, a society should be established in which:

(a) Every citizen has complete freedom to choose and practise his or her religion, political and religious philosophy, and way of life.

(b) The system of government is fully consistent with democracy, equality, social justice and the accepted principles of human brotherhood, and no constitutional assembly introduces any law contrary to Islam or to the religious beliefs and traditions of any sect.

(c) Providing the people with basic necessities, treatment, education, employment and religious facilities, and giving unemployed people suitable financial assistance, is included among the state's fundamental duties.

(d) The people enjoy fundamental human rights, freedom of thought and expression, freedom to propagate their views, protection of life, property and honour, freedom of movement and equal opportunities for political, economic and social advancement.

(e) No state subject is subjected to oppression or injustice because of sex, place of residence, race, language or religion; no part of the state, or racial, linguistic or religious group, has undue superiority over another part or group. However, all backward areas and groups shall be given preferential treatment to bring the whole state to the same educational and economic level.

Since the complete sovereignty of the whole state is fundamental to obtaining ultimate freedom, the Front's greatest attention and foremost focus shall be the struggle to end the state's forcible division and external domination and to make it an independent and sovereign country. Nevertheless, in obtaining freedom, the Liberation Front shall devote its full attention to the objectives of ultimate freedom stated in subclauses (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e) of clause 7 of Article 4.

8. The movement for Kashmir's freedom is a national liberation movement of the state-subject Kashmiris across the state's forcible division. It should be presented in that capacity within and outside the country and internationally. The struggle for freedom should be based on scientific and practical principles in accordance with the laws of the countries concerned.

9. The struggle for the state's complete sovereignty and ultimate freedom is the duty of every patriotic Kashmiri, whether residing in any part of the state or outside it.

10. Sectarianism and racial, linguistic, regional and class divisions are deadly poison for national interests and the freedom movement. Every patriotic Kashmiri is duty-bound to take all appropriate steps to end these prejudices.

11. Only the people of the state possess the right to determine its constitution, political, economic and social system, and the nature of its relations with other countries. No decision concerning these matters may be imposed on them.

12. The State of Jammu Kashmir has been a cradle of human values for centuries. Ensuring their protection is necessary for every patriotic Kashmiri, whatever sect, majority or minority, he or she belongs to.

13. Safeguarding all minority rights is not merely the legal and religious duty of the state's Muslim majority; ensuring it is also the centuries-old human tradition and moral responsibility of all Kashmiris.

Article 5 Aims and Objectives

1. To struggle to free the State of Jammu Kashmir from external domination, make it a sovereign country, give it a dignified place among the world's nations, and establish within it a government and society based on individual freedom, democracy, equality, human brotherhood and social justice.

2. To take all appropriate steps to protect the state people's cultural and civilisational values and their Kashmiri identity.

3. To give practical expression to the struggle for freedom by establishing practical strategies in accordance with the requirements of each stage.

4. To fight for freedom on all fronts which the United Nations has declared permissible in the liberation wars of oppressed nations.

5. To provide moral assistance and encouragement to all organisations and individuals struggling for the state's complete sovereignty.
6. To present the Kashmir issue and the freedom movement internationally as the national liberation struggle of Kashmiris, and to strive to obtain international public support for the complete sovereignty of the whole state.
7. To promote patriotism and a spirit of freedom among the state people and to create unity in their ranks for obtaining freedom.
8. To establish relations with national liberation movements and their institutions throughout the world, include them among the Liberation Front's supporters in the freedom struggle, and support national liberation movements elsewhere.
9. To expose before the state people those elements who work for foreign powers to obtain or protect personal and group interests in return for national freedom.
10. To struggle to end regional, racial, linguistic, sectarian, religious and class hatred and division among all peoples of the state, and to create unity, brotherhood and harmony among them.
11. To establish practical contacts, through organised means, between patriotic political elements among the people in the different parts of the state, who have been separated from one another by its present forcible division.
12. To undertake all appropriate efforts to resolve the state people's social and economic problems.
13. To take all appropriate steps to communicate the Liberation Front's ideology, aims, objectives and programme to as many people as possible.
14. To take all appropriate steps to acquaint the Kashmiri people with the state's history, geography and economic strength, and with the real nature and correct history of the Kashmir issue and freedom movement.
15. To take appropriate steps to organise patriotic Kashmiris, whether within or outside the state, under the Jammu Kashmir Liberation Front's flag.
16. Until the whole state is freed from external domination, to struggle to establish in the liberated territories an interim coalition government of the whole state that is independent, sovereign and democratic, by bringing together Gilgit-Baltistan, Azad Kashmir and the Azad Government established on 4 October 1947, in the light of that Government's aims and objectives. This government shall play an international role in obtaining the freedom of Indian-occupied Kashmir.

Article 6 Membership

(a) Conditions of Liberation Front membership

Under the Jammu Kashmir Liberation Front's constitution, every state subject, male or female, who is himself or herself, or whose parents are, hereditary state subjects of Jammu Kashmir or state subjects under its law, shall be eligible to become a Front member irrespective of his or her or the parents' birthplace, present place of residence or citizenship, provided that:

Any one of the above-mentioned basic officers shall confirm the applicant's membership by receiving the prescribed fee. Thereafter, the relevant district president shall issue provisional membership to the applicant or renew the provisional membership. Six months after the date of provisional membership, it shall be regarded as permanent, unless the Supreme Head, Chairman, or president of the relevant zone, district or branch cancels it on the recommendation of the relevant branch's General Assembly.

3. Membership renewal shall be compulsory. After one year, membership shall be regarded as permanent. At a convention at any level, membership must also be renewed by paying the prescribed fee; only then shall the person be eligible to participate in the relevant convention.

2. Being engaged, orally, in writing, through newspaper statements or correspondence, in propaganda against the organisation's ideology, aims, objectives or leadership.

3. Obtaining any unlawful personal benefit from membership or an organisational office.

4. Disobeying organisational discipline or conspiring with persons expelled from the organisation for violations of that discipline.

6. Being absent without reasonable cause from three or more consecutive meetings at the relevant level.

7. Failing to pay outstanding organisational dues, such as membership fees or financial subscriptions, despite the issue of reminders and notices.

(ii) The relevant superior institution must issue a show-cause notice to the member or officer concerned, providing an opportunity to present a defence within fourteen days before cancellation of membership. A decision shall be made if the notice is not complied with within the prescribed period. If membership is cancelled, the member or officer may appeal within one month. When an appeal is filed, the membership-cancellation decision shall be regarded as suspended until the appeal is decided.

(iii) A member expelled by a zone's superior institution shall have the right to appeal to the Chairman within one month. If the Chairman's decision is also against the member, he or she may appeal to the Supreme Council; the Supreme Council's decision shall be final.

(d) Code of conduct and members' rights and duties

1. Every Liberation Front member shall observe the four golden principles of unity, firm faith, ceaseless action, and order and discipline, because these guarantee the national freedom movement's success.

2. Every member is duty-bound to understand properly the constitution's aims, objectives and ideology and to communicate them to other people as a national duty. For this purpose, the member shall study literature published by the organisation.

3. While remaining faithful to the organisation's constitution, every member is duty-bound to respect its leadership at every level, act on its decisions and instructions, and encourage others to do so.

4. Liberation Front members shall maintain continuous contact with sympathisers, supporters and like-minded people. They shall communicate the organisation's message and acquaint them with facts. By strengthening their own moral character and their image among the public, and making themselves and their organisational ideology acceptable, members shall remain active in making their organisation more effective.

5. Every member shall ensure that he or she takes no step contrary to the organisation's policy, programme, strategy, principles or ideology. However, the member shall be entitled to give opinions and suggestions concerning these matters to responsible individuals and institutions at the relevant level.

6. Every Liberation Front member shall strive to become hardworking, determined, sincere, well-mannered, cheerful, fearless, truthful, honest, steadfast, sociable and patriotic, because these qualities raise a person's character to great heights.

7. Every Liberation Front member's moral character should be free from selfishness, nepotism, sectarianism, racial pride and discrimination, and personal and group interests. The member should be a source of public and national harmony among all sections of society and should prefer national and collective interests over personal interests.

8. Every Liberation Front member is duty-bound to maintain contact with other like-minded organisations and to try to increase friends and supporters without sacrificing his or her own ideology and principles.

9. No Liberation Front member shall, in any circumstances, make a statement against the ideology of another organisation's members, leaders or activists. However, the organisation's responsible officers are bound, where they consider it necessary, to give an appropriate response to a statement published by any organisation.
10. An officer or member at any level has the democratic right to hold a differing opinion on a matter concerning him or her. However, accepting the majority decision at every level and acting on the instructions is his or her fundamental constitutional duty.

Chapter Four Organisational Insignia Symbols and Miscellaneous Provisions

Article 18 Flag Letterhead and Monogram

(a) Jammu Kashmir Liberation Front flag structure and philosophy

(1) Structure: The Jammu Kashmir Liberation Front's flag shall be green, red and white. Its width shall be three-fifths of its length. The upper strip shall be green and shall be five parts in length and one and a half parts in width. Similarly, the lower strip shall be red, five parts in length and one and a half parts in width. Thus the whole flag shall be five parts long and three parts wide. The two colours shall be joined so that a triangle equal to one-quarter of the full length is formed within the two strips, with a corresponding white triangular strip attached to it. There shall be additional white cloth at the flagpole.

(2) Philosophy: The flag's three colours and the two triangles in it together express the Liberation Front's ideology and philosophy.

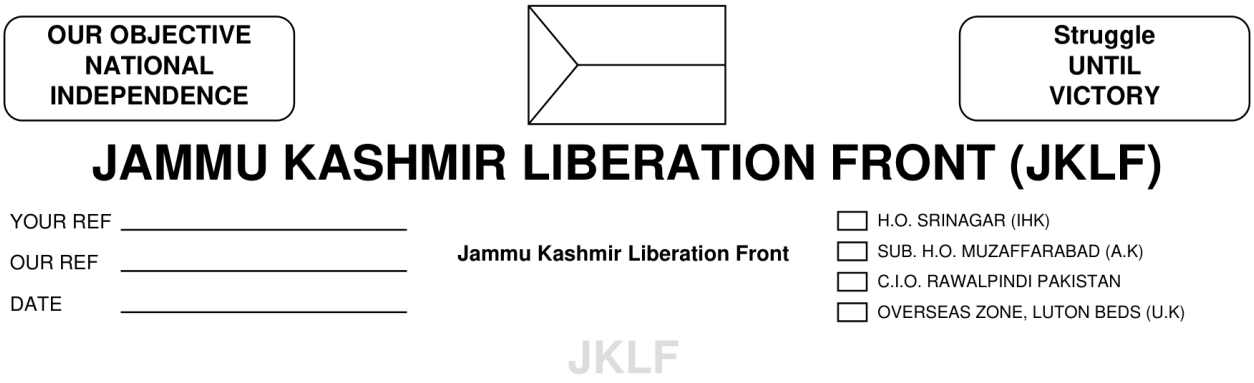

(i) Green represents the state's greenery and the identity of the majority of its inhabitants, namely Muslims, approximately 78 per cent.

(ii) Red represents the struggle and sacrifice. In relation to revolution it represents the Liberation Front's revolutionary ideology and programme; in relation to sacrifice, it expresses the Front's philosophy that obtaining ultimate freedom is impossible without offering one's blood and life as well as making every other kind of sacrifice in the struggle.

(iii) White represents peace and the minorities, approximately 22 per cent. In this respect it represents our peaceful struggle and also the identity of the state's religious minorities.

An interesting fact about the flag's structure and colour proportions is that the ratio of its green and white portions, green 7/9 and white 2/9, is the same as the ratio of the state's Muslim and non-Muslim populations, namely 77.78 : 22.22 per cent.

(b) Organisation's letterhead

The organisation's letterhead shall carry its name and flag at the top. On the right, the English wording "OUR OBJECTIVE NATIONAL INDEPENDENCE" shall appear in red capital letters in the form of a rectangle, and on the left the English wording "STRUGGLE UNTIL VICTORY" shall appear in large English letters.

Below it shall appear "JAMMU KASHMIR LIBERATION FRONT (JKLF)", and below that, in red, "Jammu Kashmir Liberation Front".
